IBIZA / FORMENTERA

It doesn't get any more exclusive or luxurious than this. The island is famous for its outstanding services that await VIPs and sheikhs from Arab countries. Many VIPs and celebrities choose Ibiza if they are looking for a holiday home. However, the third-largest Balearic island is also a renowned party Mecca. The Pacha club is synonymous worldwide with all-night parties, and is a favourite destination of the international jet set.

There are a lot of visitors on Ibiza right from the start of the season. The sheikh from Dubai has invited Patrick Baiata, CEO & owner of P-Guards Security, onto a 50 m yacht, with an estimated value of approx. €35 million. The yacht offers space for 18 guests and 16 crew members. They travel daily on the super yacht between Ibiza and Formentera. Patrick Baiata is not only a bodyguard when he and his team of P-Guards work for the services of His Majesty in Dubai, but is also considered to be a close ally of the sheikh.

Those who know the island well claim that the sheikh wishes to hire the Pacha club for himself and his staff and friends for several days in the coming weeks, for which he obviously has the necessary means. "On Ibiza, it's easier to sell a €600 bottle than one costing €300", a spokesperson of the champagne producer Louis Roederer revealed to the newspaper El País. Dinner is enjoyed in the most expensive restaurant in the world - Sublimotion: A set menu there costs a trifling €1,500. Naturally, only stars and the super-rich can afford that.
